THOMAS GRADY DEAD.
 Expires Suddenly From Heart Disease—Has a Daughter in Norwich.

While wheeling a barrow on Railroad street early Tuesday evening back no more. I move my family and where I go I stay. That is a good place, Danielson: good pay, good town, and I guess Polish people will like to live there, all right. Goodbye West Warren. It's too bad for leave here, but West Warren is good.

The majority of these families who are leaving are from the Patch district and a few from the West End of the village.

While the strikers were loading their furniture, their leader, Joseph Markiewicz Ludlow, was locked up in the cell room of police headquarters on Albany street.

Markiewicz was arrested by Chief of Police Clarence L. Thompson, charged with assault on Miss Mary Purkenzia while she was on her way to work this noon.

Miss Purkenzia was about to cross the street from her home, Patch street to enter the mill yard, when, it is alleged, Markiewicz grabbed the woman and spoke to her in low tones, and the women complained to Officer Thompson, who had a warrant issued for Markiewicz's arrest, and he was at once taken to the Albany street detention room. Late tonight he was unable to secure bail.

HEARD NOTED SUFFRAGIST.
 Rev. Dr. Anna Shaw Was Speaker at Meeting Arranged by Danielson Women.

Rev. Dr. Anna Shaw, noted suffragist leader, talked to several hundred people in the Orpheum theater Wednesday evening. The storm did not keep away many who wanted to hear her, and all that came were well repaid.

Dr. Shaw talked about one hour and a half. Miss Emily Pierson, state organizer, followed Dr. Shaw. She explained the system and routine that must be followed in getting a resolution to the house of representatives in Connecticut and routine that constitutional amendment allowing women to vote on equal terms with men in this state. With that plan in mind, she announced that petitions would be circulated through the audience for signatures. Miss Pierson also announced that this (Thursday) afternoon there is to be a meeting at the home of Mrs. Riezi Robinson for the purpose of organizing a branch of the Equal Franchise league. The organization will be followed by an informal reception at Dr. Shaw's home.

Dr. Shaw said there was nothing unfair or revolutionary in the request of women for the right to vote. She defined a republic in its purest form as a government in which all persons of equal preparation should have a right to vote on equal terms. We are here, said Dr. Shaw, to tell you what the Lord told you in the beginning: it is not good for man to stand alone. There is no great revolution in what we propose; it is simply the next logical step in the evolution of a republic out of a monarchy.

Dr. Shaw's talk was cheered at many points and it was evident that her fine argument had driven home. At the conclusion of her lecture she spent some time in answering questions that were handed up to her from the audience. The suffrage workers who are in Putnam this week were busy in the audience during the lecture and received a large number of signatures to their petition and generous contributions in aid of the work they are so valiantly carrying on.

SIX WEST WARREN STRIKERS.
 Coming to Work For Danielson Cotton Company—Twenty-Eight Families Load Household Goods into Freight Cars.

The following of local interest appeared in a Worcester paper Wednesday:

West Warren, Jan. 28.—Using every available conveyance, 28 Polish-speaking families began loading their household goods into freight cars at the Boston & Albany railroad station, for the journey to Danielson.

Conceding this afternoon that a majority are Warren cotton mill operatives who have been offered employment by the Danielson Cotton Co., of Danielson.

These people who will leave town at once for their new employment, have been offered several inducements by the Danielson mills, if they would go there to work. The company has arranged to pay the freight on all household goods, and the men would go so the railroad fare of each individual from this place to Danielson.

Orders were given by the persons connected with the mills in that place to have box cars ready at West Warren for loading the furniture at once, and with the arrival of these cars here today, loading was begun.

Family help seems to be the class of employees preferred, and while the men were loading the goods into the three large freight cars, women and children were bringing small articles from the homes to be loaded. The goods were thrown into the cars regardless as to the owners, and as no tags denoting the owners were noticeable, it will be exceedingly difficult for each family to pick out the right furniture. Wood, coal, and in fact, every article used was taken.

The strike will be on ten weeks Thursday.

A representative of the Danielson Cotton Co. in charge of the loading, he said:

"We supposed that only a few families would be willing to leave and I was greatly surprised at the number who signified their intention of leaving. I will take them all. We can use them in the new mill which we are trying to start."

John Bushenza, one of those who is moving his family to Danielson, said: "Goodbye, West Warren. I no come back no more. I move my family and where I go I stay. That is a good place, Danielson: good pay, good town, and I guess Polish people will like to live there, all right. Goodbye West Warren. It's too bad for leave here, but West Warren is good."
